

MAJOR PFIZER SHAREHOLDERS

PFIZER, the world's biggest drug company, ranks 3rd among the world's largest market capitalizations (USD 200 billion) and is held to 63% by major institutional investors (banks, insurance companies, mutual funds, pension funds). Because institutional investors' asset management focuses on risk diversification and portfolio liquidity, they individually only hold minority stakes (ie less than 5%) in PFIZER stock. Nevertheless, these shareholders put together do have a predominant weight in the company's capital, and by their common requirements for very high return on investment (over 20% per year), they are the vector of the financial community's control of PFIZER .

Among top shareholders feature three global top-10 banks (BARCLAYS BANK, DEUTSCHE BANK, CITIGROUP), one French top-3 insurance company (AXA), a leading american pension fund (TIAA-CREF), and virtually all the major US mutual funds, such as FIDELITY (the world's #1 mutual fund with approximately USD 775 billion of assets under management), VANGUARD GROUP (the #2 fund manager, claiming some USD 750 billion of assets under management), STATE STREET CORP., WELLINGTON MANAGEMENT COMPANY, NORTHERN TRUST CORP. and MELLON FINANCIAL CORP.

Besides, PFIZER top managers hold about 1% of the company capital – essentially granted in the form of stock options. The remaining 36% shares of the company are owned by a vast number of individual holders.
